

U. S. DISTRICT COURT.—Owing to the absence of the U. S. District Attorney, this court had not met up to 2 o'clock.

Colonel Dahlgren's Body.

The Richmond Whig of the 8th says:—The body of Colonel Ulric Dahlgren, killed in the swamps of King and Queen, by the 9th Virginia cavalry, was brought to the city on Sunday night and laid at the York River depot during the greater part of the day yesterday, where large numbers of persons went to see it. It was in a pine box, clothed in a Confederate shirt and pants, and shrouded in a Confederate blanket. The wooden leg had been removed by one of the soldiers. It was also noticeable that the little finger of the left hand had been cut off. Dahlgren was a small man, thin, pale, and with red hair and a goatee of the same color. His face wore an expression of agony. About 2 o'clock P. M., the corpse was removed from the depot and buried—no one knows, or is to know, where.

In the Senate of the United States yesterday, while the bill to equalize the pay of soldiers in the service of the United States was under discussion. Mr. Pomeroy, of Kansas, made a speech which had no relation to the bill whatever, but which is important as developing the Presidential programme of the more Radical wing of the Republican party. Mr. Pomeroy, in the course of his speech, avowed the authorship of the famous Chase circular, and expressed his dissatisfaction with the Administration for its indefinite and vacillating policy. He spoke at great length, and laid down the leading principles which ought to govern the party in the future. "Faith in progress and triumph of the right must not be left to languish without works. In the Union that is to be, liberty and Union shall be forever inseparable. This is a war for mankind. It has the old battle cry of liberty. It establishes freedom in a free Government as the hope of the world." Messrs. Wilkinson and Lane reprobated the course of Mr. Pomeroy and those with whom he claimed to act.

In his charge to the Grand Jury, of Washington, Judge Fisher said:—"One of the worst consequences growing out of war is the fearful laxity of morals which it begets among the people wherever its influence extends, and the almost countless host of stragglers, idlers, corrupt adventurers who hover around towns and cities in the rear of great armies like that which for nearly three years past has been stationed around the national capital for its defence and protection."

The Washington Chronicle says:—"Recent events have been less fruitful of happy results for the Union than had been hoped and expected by its friends. Charleston has not been taken; Lee maintains a bold front on the Rapidan; the Florida expedition was a failure; the Sherman expedition has not been a success, and the rebels have everywhere shown more vigor than they were supposed to possess."

Gen. Grant visited the Army of the Potomac yesterday, and dined with Gen. Meade, who is reported as slightly indisposed.

Some three thousand bales of hay were destroyed yesterday morning, by a fire which occurred in a large building, used as a storehouse, several squares below the Capitol in Washington. The hay was owned by several parties. In the southern portion of the building, a quantity of sutler's goods, valued at $850, were also consumed.

The New York Commercial reports, on the authority of a letter from Fortress Monroe, that not only is Newbern besieged by the Confederates at this time, but that nearly every other Federal post in North Carolina is similarly invested.
